MISCELLANEOUS CHAIRS

SOUSAPHONE CHAIR

Before 1946, playing the sousaphone was a very awkward exercise. Even students with the desire and talent were often too overwhelmed by the instrument's size and cumbersome nature to stick with it. Harry Wenger, a band leader and educator always looking for ways to help his students and fellow musicians, designed a chair that supports the instrument's bulk and lets musicians concentrate on their technique. The Sousaphone Chair hasn't changed much since Harry Wenger's original design. Neither has Wenger's desire to develop the innovations that enhance your musician's abilities.

FEATURES:

- 16 gauge base frame
- 15½" (394 mm) square, non-contoured, vinyl clad seat with ½" (13 mm) plywood substrate
- Seat height is 16¼" (413 mm) at back and 16" (406 mm) in front
- Three adjustable support arms enable optimum positioning of the Sousaphone

GIG STAND® FOLDING MUSIC STAND

Wenger's Gig stand is the most sturdy, solid, inventive portable music stand ever built.

Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana

GIG STAND® FOLDING MUSIC STAND

Three-legged base provides superb stability but with a small footprint — rare for a highly portable stand. The Gig Stand also features a lift arm that moves the desk up and down to accommodate the special needs of timpanists, bell choirs, and jazz musicians. It's designed to lock into solid positions that other portable stand makers didn't think possible. The Gig Stand also stands up to the weight of an oversized portfolio loaded with music. Why settle for a flimsy travel stand or an inflexible classroom stand that was never meant to travel? Just fold up this premier portable stand, grab the handle and go.

FEATURES:

- Unique swing-lift arm adjusts desk height from 10" - 42" (254 - 1067 mm), desk lip to floor
- Built-in carrying handle makes for easy traveling
- Durable powder-coat finish resists scratching and chipping
- 16-gauge steel tube and base
- Folds down to 4 7/8" x 24 1/2" x 20" (117 x 622 x 508 mm)
- 14" x 20" (356 x 508 mm) aluminum desk
- 9 lbs (4.1 kg)
- Five-year warranty
